Name	What I did after Leaving Homefield Preparatory School	What I am doing now
Anthony Robinson	Royal Navy	Semi-Retired
Boyd Goldie	I went to Epsom College and failed my A levels. I retook A levels at Kingston Tech and then studied Medicine at Westminster Hospital. I became a Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon at Whipps Cross Hospital.	Sailing
Geoff Cox	Left Homefield for Epsom College and from there to Loughborough University. Spent too much time playing sport and not enough time studying ... but still!	Work consisted of 4 years in a couple of financial jobs, then 25 years running my own business from Gander Green Lane - just a few hundred yards from the (new) school. Sort of retired now. I've also spent a great deal of time working on various environmental projects. Not married, no kids but with Bridget since 1993.
Jeremy Williamson	Went to Epsom College and onto Bath College. worked for a number of years in leasing and finance and then in facilities management	I now run my own consultancy business
Jonathan Clark	Epsom College 1970-74 and Ewell Technical College 1974-75. I then took a degree in Geology at Kingston Polytechnic (1975-78). I spent my early career working as a geologist in the oil industry, working offshore both in the North Sea and abroad (Brazil, Singapore, Philippines and Indonesia). I subsequently took an MSc in Sedimentology at Reading University (1991-92) to focus on the environmental sector where I worked as a geologist involved in landfill engineering, ground investigation, contaminated land remediation and brownfield redevelopment, from 2008 as a director at RSK plc. In 2014, I returned to the oil and gas industry working for a consultancy providing commercial and environmental due diligence services.	I retired in June 2018.

Mike Henwood	Went to Epsom College and the University of Warwick before embarking on a career in Civil Engineering	Married with 2 girls, living in Beckenham, Kent
